1001 NIGHTS

Şehrazat's boss offers to pay for her son's treatment for leukemia if she spends the night with him and when that evolves into love they face a struggle to banish the secret of that night.

The life of talented architect Şehrazat is shattered by family tragedy and illness. Her husband dies in a car crash and she is left to bring up her one-year-old son Kaan alone. Her suffering is complete when she discovers that Kaan has leukemia and needs urgent medical treatment.

Şehrazat's sees a glimmer of hope when a matching bone marrow donor is found in Azerbaijan. She must raise $200,000 for his treatment. Her father-in-law Burhan is unwilling to give the money and Şehrazat's bank refuses to make a loan. She will face a heart-wrenching dilemma that will shape her future.

Amid her anguish, she builds a career as an architect at a major construction company. With no options remaining, she asks her manager Onur to lend her money. While he distrusts women, he is secretly attracted to Şehrazat. He will help on one condition: she must spend the night with him.

The trauma of that night will go on to haunt Şehrazat. Onur too cannot forget it. He arranges a business trip to Dubai so that he can be alone with her again. In the hotel elevator, he proposes that she spend the night with him again, doubling the amount of money. She refuses, disgusted by the offer.

Increasingly uncomfortable with Onur's obsession for her, Şehrazat decides she has only one option. She must leave his company and find new work. Her reaction to his advances makes him realize the error of his ways. He feels growing shame at forcing himself upon her.

Tormented by remorse and regret, Onur tries to show her how much he cares for her. He begins to understand what he has made her endure professionally and personally. As he becomes increasingly attached to her, he is ready to do anything to earn her love.
