HOUSE OF LIES

The Firtinas appear to be a perfectly happy and respectable family. Aylin is a successful lawyer and her husband Cihan an academic set to become a professor. But an illicit relationship and a suspicious daughter trigger the collapse of the facade in a moment of fury, leaving a terrible secret to tear them apart.

The trouble starts when Cihan's daughter Cemre hears him whispering to what she realizes is a secret lover. Despite her father denying the affair, Cemre's suspicions multiply. When she sees her father embracing Inci, the daughter of the family maid Gulsum, Cemre becomes convinced that she is his girlfriend.

Her simmering anger boils over on the day of a party at home to celebrate Cihan earning his professorship. Inci is like a sister to Cemre, her brother Mert and younger sister Melisa, but Cemre is consumed by rage over the apparent betrayal and confronts her in a secluded part of the house.

Cemre refuses to believe Inci's denial of an affair and attacks her furiously. The commotion attracts Cihan's attention and he comes running to see the distraught Cemre and the bloodied body of Inci. Efforts to resuscitate her fail and he can only look on in astonishment and ask Cemre, "what have you done?"

In truth, Cihan loved Inci like a daughter. They only embraced as he thanked her for her gift to congratulate him on his professorship. In fact, unknown to his wife Aylin, he is having an affair with the beautiful host of the TV show on which he appears as a pundit.

Cihan summons Aylin home and when she sees what Cemre has done, the parents work out how to handle the situation. Fearing the truth would destroy their daughter and family, they conspire to conceal the truth. That night, after the party, they wrap Inci's corpse in a black bag and bury it in the garden.

The maid Gulsum is devastated by the disappearance of her daughter and after time passes the police become involved in the search for her. While Cemre is falling apart psychologically, her brother Mert is also shattered at Inci going missing. The two of them were secretly in love.

When the body is finally found, having been reburied in woodland far away, the detective who takes charge of the investigation is the Firtina family friend Bulent – a former sweetheart of Aylin. As well as hiding the truth about the murder, Cihan and Aylin must also contend with the demands of their lovers.

While the affairs tear away at their marriage, Cihan and Aylin are bound together by their gruesome secret and must stick together as partners in crime to conceal the truth and protect their daughter.
