Badly beaten and abandoned by a road one night, Ela Yuksel is the victim of her love for well-known magnate Ilker Ilgaz, who exploits her naivety in this emotional rollercoaster. Drawn into a passionate love triangle with Ilker and his long-term girlfriend Irem, Ela's drama drags their families into an acrimonious battle which takes over their entire lives.

After her daughter barely survives the attack on her 19th birthday, Bahar blames Ela's secret lover Ilker. Police detain him shortly before his wedding to Irem, daughter of prominent businessman Harun Orhun. The violent attack and arrest grabs headlines across Turkey when the jealous love rivalry at the heart of the affair comes to the surface.

The spark of conflict is lit when university student Ela invites Ilker, her father's boss, to speak at a conference in her school. Flattered by his interest in her, Ela falls head over heels in love, ignoring their age difference and her mother's unease about the relationship. Ilker brushes aside her concerns about Irem, dismissing her as a troubled ex-lover.

Having failed to rescue her daughter from the doomed liaison, Bahar now focuses her attention on achieving justice for her daughter in court, entering a bitter war with Ilker's mother Hale. Bahar's ally in this battle is Harun, Irem's father, who opposes his daughter's relationship with Ilker. But they both suffer a harsh blow when Irem marries Ilker in prison.

Bahar and Harun are united in trying to save their daughters from Ilker but must contend with his scheming as they struggle to defuse the hate-filled rivalry between Ela and Irem. The two young women become mortal enemies, but Ilker keeps them under his spell for months with his selfish manipulations. He succeeds in getting them to defend him in court.

When the trial begins, neither Ilker nor Ela give statements about the night of the attack. Ela undergoes five operations after suffering a serious head trauma which left gaps in her memory, while Ilker was blind drunk and cannot remember clearly what happened. As the uncertainty weakens the case against Ilker, he undermines the victim with a campaign to manipulate perceptions of Ela.

Ilker's lawyer exploits inconsistencies in Ela's story to stain her reputation, portraying her as a stalker who harassed Ilker in a haze of erotomania. As his family stokes a media frenzy, support for the victim begins to evaporate and Ela becomes the target of insensitive, merciless accusations.

Ela has once again become the victim, attacked by a social media lynch mob. As the jealous rivalry and power games take on a life of their own, Ela begins to question her sanity. In the battle which ensues, only her own mother can help her overcome the forces aligned against her.
